The Show:

Editor of the Janesville Gazette, Scott Angus was with us today. Scott has lived in Janesville for 28 years and worked at the Gazette for the same amount of time. His father was in the newspaper business for 40 years and Scott says the business now changes more every two years than it did the entire time his Dad worked.

The newspaper business is facing stiff competition these days with the internet, 24 hour cable news and sports channels and the dwindling number of people who actually read a paper versus using the afore mentioned media.

Back in the day Ward Clever came home at 5:00 pm had a martini and read the paper, today Ward comes home at 6:30 pm grabs the kids for soccer practice while June is still at work. If they are lucky they meet home at 9:30 pm exhausted and certainly not interested in reading the paper.

With the many changes in the industry Bliss Communications; the privately held corporation that owns the Janesville Gazette, is still doing alright for itself as it builds a new production facility on Wuthering Hills Drive. The new facility will house a new printing press along with the staff necessary to get the paper produced. The writers, sales and marketing, accounting and all other staff will remain in the downtown building.

On Monday October 22, 2007 the first printing of the new and improved Janesville Gazette will hit the streets, changes will include more color, shorter and narrower pages, have 2 versus 4 sections and if Dr. O'Leary has his way, better comics on Sunday.

In addition the paper will shift to more local and regional news taking space from the national and international news areas.

Thanks to Dave Fleig for taking the notes. Members having information for future newsletters can email editor@janesvillekiwanis.org.
